APA style is a standard method of presenting written information in the science disciplines that ensures consistency and clarity in the presentation of written material for publication. The most current APA style information comes from the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, 6th edition.

Citation of references and manuscript formatting are the most common concerns of TTC nursing students. Listed below are section and page references for specific information:

APA Format for Nursing Students

Margins, line spacing, paragraphs: Use margins of at least one inch on all sides. (In Word 2013, go to Page Layout, Margins and choose Normal--1” on all sides). Double-space the entire paper (including title page, quotations, notes, and the list of references), with no extra blank lines between paragraphs (remove extra lines by clicking the dropdown for line and paragraph spacing just above Paragraph on the Home tab, then click Remove Space After Paragraph). Indent the first line of each new paragraph a half-inch on the left. Indent set-off block quotations one inch on the left. Left margin only should be justified. Use 12-point serif typeface (Times New Roman, Courier, etc.)

To add header in Word 2013: Go to Insert>select Header>choose Blank. Check the Box for “Different First Page.” Type Running head: and your ABBREVIATED TITLE (in all caps, not in bold!), Tab twice, and type the numeral 1. Highlight the info you just typed into the header area, right click or go to the Home tab, and change the font to Times New Roman 12 pt. (to match the font of your text). Double click out of or close Header.

On the second page of the paper, click in the Header area, click Page Number>Top of Page>Plain Number 3 (this automatically numbers remaining pages). Type just the ABBREVIATED TITLE (all caps), Tab twice, highlight the abbreviated title and the number 2, and change the font. Double click out of or close Header.
Title Page--The title page should include a running head, the full title of the paper, author byline, and institutional affiliation. Center the title of the paper on the upper half of the page. Your name (author byline) and your affiliation (Trident Technical College) go on separate lines below the title. Only include other information on the title page if directed to do so by your instructor. Don't italicize or underline your own title or put it in quotation marks. Note: Also type the complete title on the first line of the first page of your manuscript—usually page 2. It's easy to copy and paste the full title from the title page.

References

Chapters 6 & 7 in the APA Manual, 6th ed., deal with references and citing sources

Notes on info to include for articles located through a database:
- Including database information in citations is not necessary (APA Manual p. 192).
- When referencing a print article obtained from an online database, provide the print citation information, in the same format as you would use to cite a print article. You may include the item number or accession number or database URL at the end, but this is not required, according to the APA Manual.
- When citing a database article that is available in other places, such as a journal or magazine, include the homepage URL for the journal or magazine.
- For articles that are easily located, do not provide database information. If the article is difficult to locate, then you can provide database information.

Points to remember when putting together a reference list:
1. Author name is written last name, first initial (ex. Doerr, H. & Murray, W.) Do not include credential acronyms (ex. MSN)
2. Date is placed in parentheses, ex. (2008)
3. Title of article is written in lower case with only the first letter of the first word in upper case. If a colon is used within the title (to indicate a subtitle), the next word after the colon has the first letter of the first word in upper case.
4. The journal name is written in upper and lower case. It is always italicized.
5. The volume number is italicized but the issue number is not. The issue number is placed within parentheses, ex. 14(2). There is no space between the volume number and the parenthesis.
6. Alphabetize the list by the first author's (of each entry) last name. Do not change the order of listed authors of the article.
7. Use ½-inch hanging indent. Don’t use extra lines between citations.
8. The entire paper should be double-spaced, with 1-inch margins.

The Difference between Format and Style

Format usually refers to the mechanics of how a piece of writing is presented. This includes manuscript elements such as margins, spacing, headers, font choice, and the order and position of information for citations.

Use a style manual (such as the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association) as a reference for the requirements of a particular format.
Style usually refers to how the information is written and includes such issues as word choice, tone, sentence structure, use of punctuation, paragraph development, and order of information. The rules of APA style assist reading comprehension in the social and behavioral sciences by ensuring clarity of communication. According to apastyle.org, the rules "move the idea forward with a minimum of distraction and a maximum of precision."

Pages 65-70 in the APA Publication Manual address writing style.
