Human Services

Associate in Applied Science

61 Credit Hours

Within the Human Services field, a growing body of data supports the need for practitioners trained to work with families, elders, people with disabilities, the unemployed, veterans and those dealing with substance abuse. Human Services professionals hold jobs in such diverse settings as group homes and halfway houses; correctional and community mental health centers; family, child and youth service agencies; and programs concerned with family violence and aging. Depending on the employment setting and the types of clients served, the job titles and duties vary a great deal. The primary purpose of the human services worker is to assist individuals, families or communities to function as effectively as possible in the major domains of living.

Other Information

In order to graduate students must complete a 270-hour field placement covering two semesters (135 per semester) during the last half of the program. Assignments for the field placement exist in mental health, youth services, social services, eldercare, corrections, disabilities, rehabilitation, addiction and other human services.

Students must meet field placement agency screening requirements, such as the South Carolina Law Enforcement Division (SLED) background check, prior to field placement assignment.

Due to the Human Services program status as a nationally accredited program, students are eligible to sit for the Human Services Board Certified Practitioner Exam in their last semester.

Admission Requirements

Admission into this program requires proof of high school graduation (or GED) and qualifying scores on SAT, ACT or the TTC placement test.
